PARTNERS ON CAPITOL HILL

- Capitol Police (Department of Public Safety)
 The Capitol Police, a division of the Department of Public Safety, provides general security to the GBA facilities on the Capitol Hill Complex. The Capitol Police have primary responsibility during an emergency or crisis. Capitol Police may order the evacuation of a building when there is evidence that there is a grave risk to life or property within a particular building.
- State Fire Marshal (Office of Insurance and Safety Fire Commissioner)
 All buildings owned, operated, or occupied by the state are subject to fire safety inspections by the State Fire Marshal's Office. State inspectors are given the authority to determine whether the life safety of the occupants and the general public is in danger from fire, explosion, or related hazards, and to enforce requirements set forth by law (OCGA 25-2-22). The Fire Marshal's Office is charged with determining if the level of safety of each building is acceptable through a combination of prevention, protection, egress, and accessibility, which are established as a state minimum fire safety standard by the Safety Fire Commissioner.

Eurest manages the historic Georgia Railroad Freight Depot as well as rooms in the Twin Towers. The Georgia Railroad Freight Depot was completed in April of 1869 and is one of the oldest buildings in downtown Atlanta. The building served as the main freight depot for the Georgia Railroad and was restored by the Georgia Building Authority in 1981 for public use. Most of the original brickwork and freight bays remain in place to give the facility a unique setting for special occasions. The Freight Room can accommodate 850 guests for a seated event and 2000 for a stand-up reception. The Freight Room is an ideal location for large award ceremonies, wedding receptions, lunch and dinner events, trade shows, or charity events with sufficient room for a DJ, band or other entertainment. You are only limited by your own imagination. The Blue Room is a quaint catering and meeting facility within the Freight Depot used for mid-size gatherings. The Blue Room's hardwood floors and two fireplaces give it an antique look that creates a beautiful setting. The Blue Room seats 150 guests and can house 225 people for a standing reception. The Blue Room is often used for breakfasts, luncheons, dinners, charity events, meetings and receptions.
